Met His Death In a Distant Dakota Stream.

The Hartford Herald says: "Mr. Thomas Parrott, formerly of Rockport, but who has been recently sojourning in the West, was accidentally drowned near Sioux Falls, South Dakota, last week. It seems he was traveling in a buggy and came to a small stream spanned by a bridge. He supposed it would bear the weight of the horses and conveyance and so drove out upon it. When middleways, the bridge broke through, and in the turmoil caused by the struggling team, he was drowned, He was a brother of Mr. Charley Parrottwho died of consumption last summer, while out West for his health.
